Ungaretti & Harris Healthcare attorneys rank among elite practitioners at state, national levels

Healthcare practice group as well as individual attorneys recognized by clients and peers

After conducting thousands of interviews with companies, attorneys and third-party experts, the highly regarded legal directory Chambers USA has once again named Ungaretti & Harris among Illinois' top-rated Healthcare practices.

About Ungaretti & Harris' Healthcare practice, Chambers says:

"Ungaretti & Harris has a significant presence in Chicago, with 14 full-time healthcare practitioners. It has experienced an increase in regulatory work over the past year. The practice acts for a wide range of healthcare organizations, including hospitals, surgery centers, assisted living facilities, home health agencies and physician groups. The healthcare department has a strong healthcare finance group, which represents venture capital funds and banks involved in capital finance transactions. Sources Say: "A fine Illinois player with a strong regional presence."

Thomas Fahey, head of the firm's healthcare department and public finance groups, ranked at state and national levels. "He has the ability to get a deal done while taking in and understanding all the details," say peers. John Durso is increasingly involved in work with continuing care retirement communities, and has represented nonprofit organizations in almost every facet of healthcare law during his 30-year career. Lynn Gordon is praised for her thorough understanding of regulatory issues. She recently represented a clinical laboratories joint venture in a matter with complex antitrust and fraud and abuse regulatory implications.

Tom Fahey has also been named one of twenty notable practitioners in the nation according to Chambers USA. We are honored by the esteem of our clients and peers in the profession.
